

Abstract of the Disclosure

Flexible display membranes are provided in various geometries in which a display area may be expanded to an operable position and collapsed to a smaller area for storage. In various configurations, the display membrane may be provided in general polygon or rounded shapes having one or more individual collapsible sections.